

TELL-TALE LETTERS.

Lealie H. Crouch Found One to His Wife from Addison W. Hoyt.

Also Discovered a Garter and Bracelet That He Never Bought.

Now the Destroyer of His Home Is in Jail in a Civil Suit.

Addison W. Hoyt was arrested last night by Deputy Sheriff Walgreen, on an order issued by Judge Freedman, on the order of the Superior Court, in an action brought against him by Lealie H. Crouch to recover $20,000 damages for the alienation of the affections of his wife, Mary S. Crouch.

Hoyt, who is but twenty-one years old, was held in $1,000 bail, which as yet he has been unable to furnish.

Mr. Crouch, the plaintiff in the action, is a real estate broker, with an office at 250 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. He resides at 220 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street.

Crouch and his wife were married March 15, 1883. Mrs. Crouch is thirty-four years old and is described as a very attractive woman.

In his complaint Mr. Crouch swears that for the past eight months his wife has treated him with much coyness, and has refused to go out on pleasure trips with him, whereas before she was pleased to go. He says that without reason his wife has shown a desire to keep away from him, when she had always been most affectionate.

The change in Mrs. Crouch's demeanor towards her husband, the latter alleges, began shortly after he consented, at the request of his nephew, to take his house into the hands of the young man who is now a prisoner in Ludlow Street Jail.

Hoyt went to board in Mr. Crouch's family in June, 1892, and remained there until last April, when Mr. Crouch ordered him to leave.

After leaving the house it is alleged that Hoyt called upon Mrs. Crouch frequently in the absence of her husband, and on several occasions took her out to places of amusement.

A friend told Mr. Crouch he had better keep his eyes open, but would say nothing further. Subsequently he received several anonymous letters regarding the actions of his wife and young Hoyt. Upon investigation Mr. Crouch found out that the letters were from his wife.

When Mrs. Crouch discovered that her husband had a letter to her, she flew into a rage and tried to take it from him. He was shoving at the time and Mrs. Crouch, who was in the room, saw the letter and took it.

Afterwards Mr. Crouch discovered that his wife had a pair of gold buckled garters which he had not given her, and which Mrs. Crouch had bought for him. He also discovered that she had a silver bracelet, which she wore all the time.

Mr. Crouch also discovered that his wife had a ring given her by Hoyt on the same finger with her wedding ring. Crouch did not like this, and he raised a row.

Shortly after this Mr. Crouch met Hoyt, and the latter confessed he was in the habit of calling on Mrs. Crouch, and also making her presents.

Mr. Crouch then ordered Hoyt to leave his wife in any way. Hoyt, so Mr. Crouch alleges, promised to obey his instructions, but he did not do so.

At last Mr. Crouch discovered a letter in the possession of one of his servants which was addressed to his wife. He then went to her room and found the letter.

The letter was dated Aug. 8 last. It began: "My dear darling, and in part as follows:

"You asked me if I was happy yesterday. I was never so happy in my life. I felt like a king when you left me. I felt like a king when you left me. I felt like a king when you left me."

Mr. Crouch, her husband alleges, told him that she never loved him, and told him that he could take her child, as she did not want it.

Mr. Crouch also files the affidavits of servants in corroboration of his allegations.

Afterwards He Returned to His First Choice and Was Arrested.

Isaac Diamondstein, a peddler, thirty-one years old, of 268 Cherry street, was arrested by Detective Feltner, in the Essex Market Police Court today to answer a charge of bigamy and grand larceny.

Mrs. Diamondstein, of Brownsville, was the complainant against him. She says she is his second wife. She alleges that Diamondstein and his first wife conspired together to defraud her. She was the first wife, she says, who introduced her to Diamondstein, two months ago, and represented him as a business man who wanted to marry.

She became engaged to him and a week later became his wife. He lived with her for two weeks and then disappeared. She alleges, with her jewelry and $100. Then Rosa, the second wife, said that she discovered that she had been duped. She played detective and searched for the man, and after a dilatory search, she found him at 268 Cherry street.

HEALTH'S NEWEST WEAPON.

"Anti-Toxine" to Be Distributed Among Physicians of This City.

Prof. Koch's New Lymph Said to Overcome Diphtheria Germs.

If the Health Department can secure the necessary appropriation from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment it will soon begin to distribute among the physicians of this city what is claimed to be a marvelous cure for diphtheria.

It is also said to be an absolutely sure preventive in the cases of those who have been exposed to this dreadful scourge of childhood.

This remedy is known as the "Anti-Toxine," and was discovered recently in the institution for Infectious Diseases at Berlin, to which the celebrated Prof. Koch is head.

This panacea for diphtheria is utilized in the blood in much the same manner as the serum for combating cholera, small-pox, but the mode of administering the treatment is considerably different.

Commissioner Cyrus Edison is the chief promulgator on the part of the Health Department, to which the lymph was sent. He is very enthusiastic over the prospective benefits that "anti-toxine" will bring.

The anti-toxine treatment rests on the following facts. It has been found that the body of a person infected with the disease and recovers from it, that that person cannot contract that disease again, and that the disease again for a period of time is because there has been injected in the body of that person an anti-toxine, some substance which neutralizes the poison (toxine) of the disease, just as acid neutralizes an alkali.

In diphtheria, an attack of the disease which is recovered from gives immunity from the disease for a time. This is because the body has acquired a tolerance of the poison created by the bacteria, and the body has in it the anti-toxine.

Prof. Koch has found that if large animals, such as horses and cows, be given small doses of diphtheria bacilli they become slightly sick. Giving them another dose a few days later, they become another and another, there comes a time when no dose of diphtheria bacilli will make them sick. This is because the body has acquired a tolerance of the poison created by the bacteria, and the body has in it the anti-toxine.

The blood of these animals then becomes a source of the anti-toxine. It is drawn off in such quantities as will not impair the animals, and may be used to treat the human race. The anti-toxine of the blood of an animal into the blood of a human being, the blood of the animal is separated before it is used.

Prof. H. H. Higgs, chief of the Bureau of Bacteriology of the Health Department, who has recently returned from Berlin, where he was sent by the Department, has transmitted to his superiors the whole plan of the anti-toxine, and also of the culture of anti-toxine, which is in the case of vaccination, and is in the case of vaccination, and is in the case of vaccination.

Prof. Higgs was present at the institution when 250 experiments were made.

WROTE IN HER SLEEP.

A Young Girl's Peculiar Freak of Somnambulism.

By Associated Press.

REDALIA, Mo., Aug. 25.—A most remarkable case of somnambulism was reported here from ten miles north of this city.

Miss Susie Sterlin, daughter of Joseph Sterlin, a wealthy farmer of Pettis County, has been taking music lessons from Miss Mary Wiley, of this city, and has been visiting the residence of her father in the city.

Miss Sterlin's parents were absent from home and when they returned they found her in the city. She had written in her sleep, and when they gave her the sheet music, she wrote in her sleep.

At midnight last night Mrs. Sterlin was awakened by hearing her daughter playing the piano. She went to her room and found her daughter writing in her sleep. She was writing in her sleep, and when they gave her the sheet music, she wrote in her sleep.

GHOSTS TO THE BAR.

Arraigned in the Lee Avenue Court and Held for Trial.

Spectres That Frightened People Were Vagrants in Flour Sacks.

Had Been Living Lives of Bliss in Archie Bliss's Vacant House.

The unusual prevalence of ghosts, the actuality of which is being asserted in affidavits on the one hand, and in revealing the attention of leading scientists and doubters on the other, and the consequent discussion of the subject, has given a lively interest to the Summer season, usually so quiet.

Ghosts are being hunted on every side. Some are laid, and some, it is alleged, are still stalking their chosen paths, and like Banquo's, will not down.

One of the most recent cases of this kind is the case of the "ghosts" in the Lee Avenue Court, which is being held for trial.

DIVED FROM WINDOW.

Paul Morrison Jumped Thirty-five Feet to the Pavement.

Had Changed His Drink from Seltzer to Absinthe Cocktails.

Taken to a Hospital, but Refused to Be Treated.

Paul Morrison, a twenty-two-year-old medical student, created intense excitement in the vicinity of the Delaware street, where he jumped from the window of a second-story building, and fell to the pavement below.

Notwithstanding that the distance was some thirty-five feet, he escaped comparatively unhurt.

Morrison is a member of an aristocratic Southern family, and occupies luxurious apartments at the fashionable Westmoreland, facing on Union Square. In social circles he is regarded as the pink of propriety. He was never known to imbibe anything stronger than a seltzer.
